Full House Greets Salvation Army Play

In spite of the bad state of the country roads, the Salvation Army players were greeted with a full house Saturday evening when they appeared at the Opera House under the auspices of the Young People of the Evangelical Church.

In the first part of the program the audience were treated to a humorous dialogue, "Mechanical Jane," recitations and vocal solos, while the selections by the band were much appreciated.

The sacred play, "The Master" was well given, the characters being presented in biblical costumes.

The adjutant spoke his appreciation of the support given them and intimated that they hoped to make a return visit.

The annual congregational meeting of Zion Evangelical church will be held Wednesday evening May 24th at 8:30, preceded by the fourth quarterly conference at 7 o'clock. This is one day earlier than formerly announced. The annual reports will be given at that time and two trustees will be elected to succeed Messrs. M. B. Clemens and G. H. Liesemer, whose terms expire.

Legion Field Day and Sports at the Butte Wednesday June 7th.

Supply of News For Broadcasts

The Canadian Radio Commission is taking steps to regulate the broadcasting of news. It is arranging with the Canadian Press for the furnishing of news bulletins at certain specified hours, and of a character acceptable to the public.

These bulletins will be available for commercial stations, irrespective of whether they have newspaper affiliations, but the prevailing practice of lifting news from newspapers and press services at great length and without credit will be checked.

The booth settings designed and made by Mr. Weber will show off his product to great advantage.

A hearty invitation is extended to all to attend.

Is everyone ready for the Pet Show this Saturday, May 27th from 10 to 11 a.m.? Every boy or girl having a pet should bring it to the show, where there will be a grand prize given to the best pet. It is open to all members of the C.G.I.T. group and will be held on the C.P.R. lot, Main St. All entries must register either Friday evening or before 11 o'clock Saturday morning with Miss Joyce Cummins or Miss Tillie Schwassinger. Entry fee 10¢. All pets must be in a cage or on a tether. Let's see every pet in town, rats to saddle ponies, belonging to any boy or girl in town or country there on Saturday morning.

There are two main reasons behind the popularity of the dog show. In the first place it is a method of getting hold of and interesting a boy or girl in livestock, and in the second place it gives a boy or girl a new interest in farming when they are raising something just a little better than anyone else.

Cubs that have a small beginning have a habit of growing and progressing. The Olds Dairy Club, which is the largest of its kind in Canada, shipped in from B.C. a carload of Holstein heifer-calves for members. There are wonderful possibilities if the Didsbury district will just get behind the movement.

A general meeting is being called in Didsbury for the evening of June 5th (place of meeting to be announced later). W. J. Elliott will be present to explain more fully the purpose of organization. It is hoped by the Agricultural Society and the U.F.A. that the Didsbury district

Boys' and Girls' Calf Club For Didsbury.

For some years now prominent farmers in the Didsbury district have been anxious to start a boys' and girls' livestock club similar to those that are being organized in many districts of the province. The matter has been taken up with the department of agriculture and the way now seems clear for a proper supervision of such a move.

The local U.F.A. and Agricultural Society are sponsoring the idea and W. J. Elliott, principal of the Vernon School of Agriculture, who has the supervision of the clubs in the central portion of the province, will assist in the matter.

The idea is that each boy or girl between the ages of 10 and 20 may select a dairy heifer-calf from those on the farm. The calf may be of any breed, but must be cared for and trained by the boy or girl. Mr. Elliott will be interested frequently in judging and the general care of dairy stock. Such meetings will be held on the farms of dairy farmers of the district, where classes of calves, etc. may be judged for the purpose of practice-judging.

A fair will be held, at which all club-members are expected to exhibit their calves, and when prizes will be given. The club members will also compete in a judging contest to determine the two best judges of the club. These two will constitute a team to compete against other districts in the province. Finally the district teams come together to determine the two best judges in the province.

Last year these teams were sent on a free trip to the Toronto Royal Show where the dominion championships are determined. It is indeed a rare honor for a district to have one of its boys or girls climb this ladder to become the best judge in the Dominion of Canada.

Huge Loan Approved.

The bill authorizing the government to raise a loan of an amount up to $750,000,000 was given a third reading in the house Friday and sent to the senate. This measure passed all other stages Thursday but was held over to allow G. G. Coote (U.F.A., McLeod) to make some observations.

Mr. Coote expressed satisfaction that the proposed bond issue would be payable in "the lawful money of Canada" rather than in gold or foreign currency. He urged the minister to fix the interest rate at 3 per cent, and make the new bonds subject to call at any time.

A Momentous World Event

A momentous conference is at the time this article is written, taking place in Washington between Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and President Roosevelt of the United States. That conference is to be followed by others between the President and the heads of other nations. All are preliminary to the World Economic Conference to be held in London in June, and the object of these many preliminary conferences is to find common ground of agreement so as to assure the success of the world gathering to follow.

As Ramsay MacDonald said upon his arrival at New York, President Roosevelt and himself, who he believed, were in harmony of spirit regarding all great world causes, were getting together to explore the problems that have to be dealt with and endeavour to find formulas for their solution. That is, Ramsay MacDonald, a life-long advocate of peace between nations in the sense that there should not be physical warfare, is now striving with might and main to bring about peace between the nations in an economic sense, and to endeavor to overcome in the fullest extent possible, the economic damage done to the world as the result of the last Great War. In President Roosevelt he finds a man of the same spirit, but with determination.

At the time of writing, newspaper despatches from Washington indicate that, although the conferences between these two great leaders of the English-speaking world are not finally concluded, it is the universal belief that eventually satisfactory agreements have been reached on all the major problems and common ground of action decided upon when the World Economic Conference assembles. Furthermore, that Great Britain and the United States will now unitedly endeavour to secure the acceptance of these views by other nations.

It is stated that these world leaders believe they have found formulas for the solution of existing world problems and the ending of the depression which has affected the world for the past three or four years. These solutions it is frankly recognized cannot be brought about by any one nation, or even by two or three nations, because the problems are international and world-wide in extent and in their application. It is further recognized that betterment of existing conditions cannot be achieved by solving one or two of universally recognized problems, rather than action must be taken in regard to a whole series of matters all more or less correlated to each other, with one interlocking into another.

This is not to say that Premier and President have decided that the whole existing economic system of the world must be replaced by some entirely new system. It does mean that they recognize the fact that, while monetary systems, international finance, systems of exchange, war debts and reparations, tariffs, trade quotas and embargoes, production and distribution of commodities of all kinds, world armaments etc., all have a bearing and effect on the one great problem, the basic cause of the world's troubles, and therefore the ultimate solution, is not to be found in any one of these things, but to a greater or lesser extent in all of them.

They are not approaching world problems as theorists, but as practical men of affairs, leaders of their people, world leaders of experience, determined, as Ramsay MacDonald says, "to clear the obstacles which block the highways of trade both within our own countries and between the nations, and so restore the hope of complement to the workless millions who look to earn their living in factory and field."

Therefore, to the extent that existing monetary systems and international methods of finance and exchange present obstacles along the highways of trade they must be altered, destroyed, but improved so as to facilitate greater freedom of exchange and render a maximum of service to the world. So, too, in regard to tariffs, quotas, embargoes, trade restrictions of all kinds. They are not seeking to bring about world free trade, which is presently impossible, but to encourage and promote, rather than discourage and restrict, trade between nations without doing damage to the interests of any, in a word, to develop mutually advantageous reciprocal exchange of commodities. Likewise, to deal with war debts, reparations, armaments in the same spirit and in order to achieve a like result. War debts cannot all be cancelled, reparations abandoned in toto, complete disarmament effected, but the obstacles erected by these things across the trade highways of the world can be largely removed.

Bringing the leading statesmen and heads of nations together in this spirit, and with such an object in view, is, we repeat, a momentous event in the world's history. International conferences, world conferences, for the exchange of national views and the exposition of national needs for friendly examination and discussion of opposing viewpoints, policies and interests, and approaching problems which are the concern of all in a conciliatory spirit, is the same sensible businesslike and Christian attitude. It is constructive, not destructive. It is practical, not impossibly Utopian. It offers hope of success, because it is not narrowly selfish but accords consideration and fair play to all.

Barr Colonists Celebrate Settlement
In What Is Now Saskatoon

From a mere hamlet on the banks of the South Saskatchewan River to a city of 45,000 population is the 39-year history of Saskatoon that has been celebrated by its benefactors of 1903, the Barr colonists. Nearly 2,000 Barr colonists settled at Saskatoon on April 17, 1903, in search of a new life in the pioneer West. Most of the colonists remained others packed on to what is now Lethbridge.

Answers Old Question

Pressure Of Expanding Steam Causes
Popcorn To Pop

Why does popcorn pop? Perhaps every child has asked that question at some time or other. Sometimes parents are unable to answer the question. The United States Department of Agriculture is authority for the statement that popcorn pops because the moisture remains in the kernels of popcorn is converted into expanding steam when the kernels are heated. The internal pressure of the expanding steam within the kernels causes the violent explosions which we commonly call popping.

Lonely Despite Vast Riches

No More Thrills In Life For Sir Basil Zaharoff

Visitors from Monte Carlo tell about an old man who is assisted each day into a palatial automobile, taken on a brief drive in the nearby districts, and then is brought back to his hotel. This is just a bit of routine, but it composed a perfect setting for the withered, tired face of the man within the limousine.

For the face is that of Sir Basil Zaharoff, for more than a generation romanticized throughout the world for his mysterious financial ramifications, and his amazing genius to sell armaments—to sell them on a big scale, to equip entire countries for war.

He became a multi-millionaire. He always was an amazing figure, one of those European anomalies created out of the blood of many nations, with intrigue in his veins, aristocratic charm in his features, and at least ten languages on his tongue.

But today, Sir Basil is just a tired old man. Playing with the fates of nations, of entire populations, no longer has any fascination for him. That has become dull. His fortune estimated at about $175,000,000 no longer buys him any thrills. He looks out from his car upon the lonely peasants, singing in the field, and no one knows what thoughts pass within his brain.

The greater part of Monte Carlo belongs to him. But he doesn't visit the gambling Casino, and disclaims any interest in it.

He was born 84 years ago at Odessa, South Russia, of Greek parents. He grew up to know ten languages when still a lad, and thus entered an unmanners form as an interpreter.

Quite Out Of Date

Modern War Moving From Chivalry
To Chemicals

An article by E. M. Forster, in the Spectator, London, says: The sword, the bayonet, the rifle, the cannon are all anachronisms and will soon only serve as military tattoo. The destruction they caused was local and so the sentiments connected with them are out of date. In the war of the future destruction will be universal. Bacterial bombs as well as poison gas will fall from the sky, the distinction between combatants and non-combatants will disappear, women and children will be as suitable a target as men, and it is not this or that king and country which will go down in the general catastrophe, but all kings and all countries. War has moved from chivalry to chemicals and unless we can get this into our heads we are doomed, kings included.

Legend About Aviatrix

Favanne Paper Tells Why Amy Johnson Commeed To Fly

When Amy Johnson made her forced landing in the Dutch East Indies on her flight to Australia, details of her adventures were published by a missionary priest in a new paper in Java and they received wide currency among the islanders. An early form of the Amy Johnson legend has been published by the Rev. Father Latley, a Jesuit priest, in the Times. Father Latley derived his information from a Java visitor to Heythrop College, Oxfordshire.

Translated into modern English, the Amy Johnson legend in its present form runs somewhat as follows: "In a far-away kingdom lived a husband and his wife. They were immensely rich and they had one daughter. They made her study under wise men so that she became very learned; but when she came home she did not understand household affairs, and she was scolded by her mother accordingly.

"Finally the daughter became angry herself and ran away and went to a skillful plumber, and the two together made a machine with fire inside to fly in the air. In this she circled above her village and landed there to the great astonishment of the people.

"Her parents, though still angry, were proud of her, and her father promised forgiveness if she could fly across the sea and come back safely.

"So she had to fly across the sea, and came to this island, by which time the fire inside the machine had gone out and she had to put in a new fire.

"Now she has still to cross one more sea, but if she succeeds, and comes home again her father will give her much money and build her a house with a roof of corrugated iron."

Mansion Turned Into Flats

Former Home Of English Duke Cost
Over Two Million

Closely ducal mansion, once the home of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, is to be turned into residential flats. Known as Sunderland House, Mayfair, it was built in 1895 at a cost of $2,500,000 by W. K. Vanderbilt, American millionaire, when his daughter Consuelo married the Duke of Marlborough. The famous ballroom, eighty-nine feet by twenty, and twenty-seven feet high, is claimed to be the finest in Mayfair. It cost $250,000 and has marble pilasters, a painted ceiling, and a music room gallery. It is recorded that 350 couples have danced there. The thirty-two bedrooms are to be divided into flats, ranging from single rooms for bachelors to suites of four or five rooms.

Aiding Salvation Army

Dutch Indies Have Issued Stamps To Help Work

The new charity stamps of the Dutch Indies have attracted a great deal of interest, for they are the first stamps ever issued in aid of the Salvation Army. In Java and other remote parts of the Dutch Indies, the Salvation Army is largely responsible for the care and education of the native children, the management of hospitals and work among the lepers. That is the reason why this great institution is represented on these stamps.

The Dutch name for Salvation Army is "Leger des Hels." This appears on each stamp and also the Salvation Army crest in the two lower corners. The set consists of four stamps, and each stamp depicts the various handicrafts that are taught the natives. The central subject of each design is in brown, and the remainder of the design in the following colors: Two-cent, violet; five-cent, sage-green; twelve and a half cents, rose; fifteen-cent, blue.

Germany Training Troops

Out Of 720,000 Men 282,000 Are Ready For Immediate Action

Germany has at its disposal today 779,000 men trained for war, according to an estimate in the Czechoslovak newspaper Libove Noviny. Its figures follow:

Reichswehr .....	100,000
The Navy .....	15,000
Regular Police .....	120,000
Auxiliary Police .....	45,000
Nazi Troopers .....	430,000 ..
Stabshume .....	60,000

Total ..... 770,000

Of these, the newspaper asserts, 282,000 are ready for immediate action and the others are being trained under high pressure. Special attention, it is declared, is being paid in Germany to military aviation and successful attempts are being made to adapt commercial planes to military purposes.

Traffic to Alberta Parks.

Although complete figures for the number of visitors to Alberta's national parks for 1932 are not yet available, the figures for the 1931-32 season up to March 1932 have just been issued in printed form from Ottawa. Traffic to the parks, while showing some decrease, was fairly well sustained in spite of depressed conditions. Banff National Park had 73,831 autos registered during the season, with about 137,000 passengers bound westward through the park. Jasper Park had just over 11,000 visitors, while 600 more came in by motor over the partly gravelled highway from Edmonton. Waterton Lakes had 11,697 autos carrying 43,391 people, showing that the popularity of the beautiful little park in the south-western part of the province adjoining Glacier Park is well sustained. The Wainwright Buffalo Park, which had a buffalo population of over 6,300-head at the beginning of 1932, had 13,461 visitors, an increase from the previous year, and Elk Island Park, a popular spot just east of Edmonton had 29,986 visitors during the period reported on.

Trout for Cold Lake.

The experiment of colonizing Cold Lake, in the north-eastern part of Alberta, with spined trout is being undertaken this summer by the fisheries branch of the provincial lands department. About 100,000 of the fish will be introduced into the waters of the lake at the beginning of June, being brought from Jasper Park hatcheries. It is believed that since the trout have done well in the cold water of mountain lakes, they ought to have similar success in Cold Lake, where there is already a considerable fishing industry.

Record University Year.

Registrations at the University of Alberta for the term just closed totalled 1,965, constituting a new record for the institution, which this year celebrated its 25th anniversary. In the previous year the total was 1,938. Of the total number, 1,555 were registered for the full courses during the fall and winter term. Others included the summer session registrations and those in similar special courses. Distributing by faculties the registrations were as follows: arts and sciences 787; applied science 281, 235 of whom were full-time; agriculture 63; medicine 342; school of pharmacy 47; school of education 31; Bachelor of Divinity course 12; summer session 181 and graduate students 128.

Increased Alberta Cattle Exports.

More Alberta beef cattle are moving in the export trade this spring, it is announced by the department of agriculture. A slight improvement in price in different markets in Great Britain, together with the fact that most of the shipments of heavy cattle from Ontario have already gone forward, has stimulated business from this province, and the season's exports will be considerably larger than last year. Several thousand head of cattle are now being finished in preparation for shipment. In the Lacombe district 1,000 head, at High River 600 and at Lethbridge 1,500 have been placed out for farmers for feeding. These animals are mostly steers and in the majority of cases are being fed under contract for ranchers.

New Debt Board.

Appointment of Alberta's new debt adjustment board was announced by Premier Brauer last recently. The chairman will be William Loepp, of Calgary, director of the Debt Adjustment Act for some years, while the other members are: L. F. Clarry, K.C. (Calgary), master-imbacher chamber for many years, and Ben S. Plumer (Bow Valley), director of the Alberta Wheat Pool. This week a supreme court judge will be designat-

Newspaper Facts.

The newspaper starts in When you are born. Relates about your excellence And tells about your sweetness. It follows you to school And prints the honor roll; If your name is found there It tells about your graduation And speaks of the excellence Of your magnificent essay. It tells of your progress During your college career, And then dilutes much about The choice of vocation. Then it gives a big notice About your marriage And praises the blushing bride Till her kinsfolk hardly know her. Then in due course of events It tells about the bouncing baby, That happens in your family— Whereby beginning its life work All over and over again. The paper also does much more: It tells of the progress Made by town and country, And boosts all enterprises; Gives free advertising Worth thousands of dollars To its home town. There are scores of other things That all good newspapers do, For which they cannot be paid. That is why every good citizen Does his utmost To support the newspaper.

Hints for the Housewife.

To make your cake fine-grained: After putting the batter into the pan lift the pan 8 or 10 inches above the table or any hard flat surface and drop it several times. All bubbles will come to the top and your cake will bake evenly and finely.

By adding one tablespoon of corn starch to each cup of sifted flour you will have a very good substitute for regular cake flour. Sift thoroughly, then measure amount required.

DOES OWN HOUSE- WORK AT 70

With the Help of Kruschen

"For nine years now I have used Kruschen Salts and could not do without them. I take the third of a teaspoonful a day. No sickness, no headaches now. I am at least 10 years of age in April, and just with taking Kruschen Salts all the time I feel like 20 years myself. I recommend Kruschen to all my neighbors. Before I began taking it I was never away from the doctor, but now I never need him. I used to have 50 or 60 headaches and then not able to do anything. But now it is different—thanks to Kruschen en Salts!"—(Mrs.) J.G.

Kruschen keeps the organs of the body working actively, cleansing and purifying the system, and sends clear, vigorous blood coursing through the veins. And the result? An end to all life's minor ills and miseries—no headaches, no nervous depression—"nerves" or constipation. Instead, a sensation of delightful freshness, high spirits, happy outlook—in short, sheer good health!

"There's one lucky devil in this world, Baker. The man that Miss MacMillan's going to marry."

Alan winced. He had never thought of Joyce marrying another man. The remark aroused a passionate unread soming hurt in him.

Sitting at the edge of the bed, the bad, Buzzard smoked a cigarette and glanced nervously at his partner who had lain down and was trying to get a little rest to fit himself for the night and battle just ahead. Something was wrong between Alan and this winsome, spirited Joyce MacMillan. There was, or had been, some passionate relationship between them. It had evidently gone on the rocks; Baker was engaged to some girl at Fort Endurance, and Miss MacMillan . . .

Well, there was that incident which he himself had seen half an hour ago when he happened to glance through the window.

"It's a pity," he thought, "for them to bait up. A d-d shame that's what. She's a regular girl. Looks, personality and spunk . . . Lord, I'd hate to ever quarrel with her!"

He wondered whether to tell Alan about that incident he'd seen. Alan was evidently floundering around in the dark about Miss MacMillan. He was a bit awkward and blundered in such matters. Buzzard thought:

"First chance I get, believe I'll tell him what she did. He ought to know. She either loves him or hates him, to do a thing like that!"

When Alan woke up late in the evening, Buzzard was still asleep and Bill Hardwick was dead to the world. Hoping to find Joyce, he went out into the trading hall.

Joyce was not there. For a few moments Alan stood looking about. As Bill had told him, she was closing out the post. He hated to think of Joyce's girlhood home being sold to some utter stranger. Thinking of Larry, soon to be invalidated out of service and condemned to a life of intolerable idleness, he wondered whether he might not get this post for his crippled patrol partner. It was well located, and Larry's host of friends among the Indians would be sure to bring him their furs.

Still hunting Joyce, he went down to the trading where old Fence, whitening at his story-stick, was guarding the piano against any log floating down and damaging it.

"You're right, Fence," Alan barked.

"Yes. Got a couple things to do. They must've put them on my mind. Where's Joyce?"

"She went down th' river bank, down that t' that fast brook comin' out'n th' hills, to sing some trout. We're shy meat."

Alan stepped into Dave MacMillan's cabin half an hour earlier, and started down stream. Gliding around the first bend, he saw Joyce two hundred yards ahead, standing on a jutting rock beside a brook mouth. When he came alongside and lifted the canoe, she greeted him with a quiet friendly smile. They sat down together on the soft moss.

After his days in the plane, with the switch of burling struts and the thunder of a motor dinning his ears, it was incredibly quiet on the spruce-bordered stream.

Very observant, he covertly stared at Joyce. She was looking past him at the far shore and woods. As he studied her features, it seemed to Alan that something profound had happened to her since he saw her last. She had changed; she was hardly the same girl. There was some new strange spiritual quality about her, as of a person who has gone down into a ravaging sickness and has had the strength to conquer and rise out of it, but at a terrible cost.

To break the silence between them he began telling her of these last weeks—his trip to Edmonton, his providential luck in meeting Buzzard, the prison charges that stood against them, their flight back north, their escape from Haskell's trap, his gladness when she saw her running down the path.

As she listened, thoroughly alive to the danger and hardships he had gone through, Joyce felt a profound gratitude, for she knew Alan had done this largely for her sake. When he mentioned the prison charges facing him, she experienced a moment of panic; and imagined herself testifying in his behalf, fighting for him as he had fought for her.

A little later, after they had discussed plans for closing in upon the bandits, Alan rose up and gave her his hand to rise. He said:

"I've got to go down river a few miles, Joyce. Buzzard cache some supplies near that salt where you and I got upset that day and had to swim for it. I want to bring them up here this evening."

He waited a moment for some hint that she might wish to go along with him. None came. He suggested:

"It'd take only a couple hours. If you'd care to, I'd like for you to go."

"I'd rather stay. Bill and Mr. Feathercrof will be awake before long. I'll have supper ready when you get back."

"I can help you with that—if you'll go."

Joyce hesitated. She was aware that Alan deeply wanted her company. After all he'd done for her, it seemed crudely ungrateful to refuse, and she herself wanted to go. But bitter wisdom whispered a warning. Since that morning when she turned his letters and picture and gifts to ashes, there had been no looking back. There must be none now. She had strength and courage to talk with him calmly and to aid toward his recovery. But they had never been more than good friends, but she dared not presume too far on that, now born strength. To be alone with him two hours on a twilight river, with their talk inevitably drifting to former times, it would be unbearable.

With gentle firmness she said: "I'd like to go, Alan. But I'd have to run back to the post. There's so many things to do." She tried to smile. "I don't want to be a neglectful hostess to Bill and Mr. Feathercrof."

As she started up the river trail, her thoughts brooded on several things Alan had said in the course of his story, especially on his occasional references to Elizabeth. Not that he had said anything derogatory about Elizabeth. But his tone, his manner . . . Was he becoming a little disillusioned? Was he seeing Elizabeth Spaulding not as the sister of his dead partner Curt, not as a girl to be cherished and shielded, but as an selfish, calculating person? Was he dimly foreseeing what his married life with her was going to be?

Joyce checked herself sharply from hoping or even thinking that Alan might break off his engagement, or even extending him anything other than grateful friendship. She was glad, profoundly glad, that his words had caused no recollection of hope, no tremor of emotion. The discovery of her strength sufficed her with a kind of pride. But for all that, she felt a great sorrow for Alan. He was bitterly unhappy, and she knew it. What was his situation now? Police work, his life in the North, comradeship with his old friends, everything that had cherised was stripped away from him, and he was going into a marriage reluctantly and forcing himself into a life that was alien to his whole nature. When Joyce thought of all that, her sympathy, tender and compassionate, went out to him wholeheartedly.

Retuning at deep twilight with the drums, Alan found Buzzard cleaning folded spark plugs on the plane engine.

Candles were already lit in the trading store. Alan looked up the path, expecting to see Joyce's figure in the lighted doorway. He hoped to have an hour to talk alone with her this evening. But all day the conviction had grown upon him that a talk with her would be worse than useless. If only God's truth didn't sound so pretentious; if only he could tell Joyce that he had become engaged to Elizabeth, had expected to marry Elizabeth, and yet all the time, in his deepest longing, had wanted not Elizabeth but her.

"If we're going to get away from here first thing in the morning," Buzzard broke into his thoughts, "we ought to put in a couple hours' work after supper on those aeronaut leads. They're pretty bad frayed around the pulleys."

"What?" Alan whirled on him, gasping. "Burn Up That Ceinture Fiecccc?"

Alan knew that Buzzard was asking him to help with that job. But he did not answer. He wanted this evening with Joyce. Unless he took circumstances into his own hands tonight, he and Joyce would drift across a continent from each other in a few days more. Torn with uncertainty of her affections for him, he was debating about this evening. After the incidents of today his picture gone, her coldness, her refusal to go with him. He was wavering, undecided.

He tossed his cigarette out on the water. "Maybe we'd better go up and help Joyce what we can."

Buzzard did not stir. For several minutes he had been glancing uneasily at Alan. Finally he screwed up courage to speak.

"It's strictly none of my business, Alan, but . . . You're engaged to a girl there at Endurance, but you brought Miss MacMillan that rainbow

Designed Speed Engines

Sir Henry Royce Of Auto Fame Dies In England

Sir Henry Royce, 70, of West Wittering, England, whose brain was behind some of the world's fastest automobile and aeroplane engines, is dead after being bedridden for six months.

He was a joint founder with C. S. Rolls of Rolls-Royce, Ltd., motor car and aeroplane engine builders, of Derby and London, in 1907.

He founded Royce, Ltd., mechanical and electrical engineers of Manchester, in 1884. When Rolls-Royce, Ltd., was formed he became its director and chief engineer.

He designed the engines which gained for Great Britain speed records on land, sea and air. It was with his engines that Flight-Lieut. G. H. Stainforth established the world air record, Sir Henry Royce's own land and race record.

Mountain View Notes

Mr. and Mrs. R. McCay, Mr. and Mrs. Goudie and J. Towers were recent visitors in the district.

The regular meeting of the W.L. which was postponed, will take place at Community Hall on Thursday May 26th.

The local farmers are finding their spring labors somewhat difficult this season and each morning one hears the remark, "I wonder if it'll rain today?" The tillers-combines are undoubtedly adire necessity for those with a large acreage to seed, etc. Gardens, too, are behind, but the Calgary Herald says if they are seeded by the 24th all is well.

Melvin Notes

Mrs. McInnes spent a couple of days last week with Mrs. Whiteside.

Mrs. Chas. Young spent last week with Dorothy at Emeraldale.

Miss Ethel Williams, of Cessford, Alberta, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnston.

We saw Mr. Chas. Foss making several trips to Calgary this week. He is buying his cattle trucked down.

Mr. and Mrs. August Krebs spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Coutz.

Miss Gladys Carlson is keeping house for her brother Lancelet. Mrs. Carlson was riding up to see Gladys and Lancelet on Thursday, when the horse she was riding came with her and bruised her ankle badly. We trust she will soon be O.K. again.

The Rugby W.L. will meet at the home of Mrs. George Young on Thursday June 1st. Mrs. A. Krebs has the topic for the day (Home Leadership). Misses Mrs. M. Weber, etc. speaking will demonstrate on pancakes and waffles made from two Rosebud flour. Didsbury should be proud to have such an industry in the district. Everybody welcome, come and have a pancake and waffle.

Alberta Crop Report.

With the 1932 spring season now definitely recorded as one of the wettest and most backward in the province's history, the Alberta Dept. of Agriculture is optimistic about the future portion of the intended sowing in the central and northern areas still unseeded and with very little extra grain seeding finished of anywhere.

A period of splendid weather following the setbacks recorded in the last report was again interrupted about May 16th by a fairly heavy snowfall which was general, and though adding satisfactorily to the already heavy spring precipitation records of many districts, kept the seeding back for two or three more days. Operations however are once more underway and indications are for satisfactory progress.

To date of this report (May 20th) the general situation in south-eastern and east central areas is that seeding will be practically completed this week with about 50 per cent of the semipasture ground. In south-western and west-central areas and along the mountains there is considerable wheat sowing yet to be done and a percentage of the above areas is being prepared now for sowing. In the Peace River area and in north-eastern parts the percentage of sowing completed as of late date rather low, being not more than from 15 to 25 per cent.

All wheat grown ground is showing healthy growth, and germination generally seems to have been satisfactory, in some places more rapid than for years. One of the beneficial results of the heavy precipitation has been the halting of all soil drifting.

Further relief to holders of school lands in the province, whereby they will have the opportunity to retain possession of the lands purchased under the School Lands Agreement, is one of the financially low level of agricultural products, is announced by Hon. R. G. Reid, minister of lands and mines.
